Q:Are french fries a good or a service?

French fries are a good not a service. A good is a object that you can touch or hold. If you buy french fries you are a consumer. You are also a consumer in a different way when you eat the fries. Food is one of our five needs, but french fries are a want in the food category.

How Long Have French Fries Been Around?

A: To know how long french fries have been around, it depends on what research you look at. It was either the Belgians or the French that first made them in the 17th century. In Belgium they might have used thin potato slices instead of fish when the water froze. In France, a man named Antoine Augustine Parmentier started growing potatoes. Soon people began selling “frites” (French fries) in carts on the street in Paris,France.

Q: What are the most popular kinds of fries?

A:

Types of fries	Total votes for favorite type
Crinkle cut fries	6 votes
Curly fries	4 votes
Waffle fries	1 vote
Steak fries (thick cut)	1 vote
Thin cut fries	8 votes

I collected 20 votes from some friends and family. As you can see on the chart thin cut fries won the most popular fries out of the people that I asked. Crinkle cut fries got a close 2nd with 6 votes. This does not mean if i asked 100 more people the results would be the same but this is how my friends and family feel.

Glossary:

consumer:someone who buys or uses things

Good:things made by people

Service:actions or activities one person performs for another
